MISCELLANEOUS READING. SMALL THINGS.

A traveller through a dusty road Strewed acorns on the lea,

And one took root, and sprouted up, And grew into a tree. Love sought its shade at evening time, To breathe its early vows, And age was pleased in heats of noon

To bask beneath its boughs. The dormouse loved its dangling twig, The birds sweet music bore;

It stood a glory in its place, A blessing evermore. A little spring had lost its way Amid the grass and fern; A passing stranger scooped a well

Where weary men might turn He walled it round, and hung with care A ladle at the brink: He thought not of the deed he did,

But judged that toil might drink. He passed again, and le! the well, By summers never dried. Had cooled ten thousand parching tongues,

And saved a life besides.

A dreamer dropped a random thought,
'Twas old, and yet 'twas new; A simple fancy of the brain, But strong in being true.

It shone upon a genial mind, And lo! its light became A lamp of life, a beacon ray, A monitory name. The thought was small, its issues great,

A watch fire on a hill; It sheds its radiance far adown, And cheers the valley still. A nameless man amid a crowd That thronged the daily mart, Unstudied from the heart. A whisper on the tumult thrown, A transitory breath, It raised a brother from the dust, It saved a soul from death.

Let fall a word of hope and love

Oh, germ! oh, fount! oh, word of love! Oh, thought at random cast! Ye were but little at the first, But mighty at the last!

DOUGLAS JERROLD: With all his fecundity of wit Jerrold was bad company. He would not be pleasant. When the opportunity occurred, he could not resist the temptation of saying the witty, Enclose the money to our address for the bitter thing. Thus, when Mrs Glover, the great comedienne, who had known him from childhood, uttered a regret over her beautiful hair becoming thin and gray, half jestingly saying, "I think it must be caused by my damping my head, when it aches, with the sent to purchasers immediately after the drawing. essence of lavender,' Jerrold instantly interjected the remark, 'Rather say, the essence of Time.' But those who play at blows must expect rubbers, says the proverb, and Jerrold sometimes was paid back in kind, much to his annoyance. For example: there was a great laugh among all who knew him, when one of the London editors (the late Mr. Moran, of the Globe,) announced the, 'severe indisposition of Mr. Douglas Jerrold,' and, contradicting it on the following day, stated that the report had arisen from the fact of his having been seen to put the quill, instead of save time, by addressing S. SWAN & CO., at the feather-end of his pen, into his mouth, and the lookers-on, knowing what venom he A list of the numbers that are drawn wrote with, naturally believed that it had
